BEES THE OPP. 19-19

In a hard-fought game at Opp last Wednesday afternoon, the Elba Baby Tigers tied the Opp Bobkittens, 19-19. The Tigers showed decided improvement over their first game with the Enterprise Wildcats B team when they were defeated 21-4.

The next game is scheduled at Enterprise on Nov. 7 when the Baby Tigers will have an opportunity to avenge their defeat.

TROPHY CABINET

A handsome and commodious cabinet, the handwork of Rayfield Reynolds, now contains the numerous football and basketball trophies won by Elba's victorious Tigers during recent years. It has been placed in the hall in the front part of the high school building.

FROST DAY EARLY

J. D. Smith, local weather station, reports that the first frost of the season fell in this area Saturday morning, Oct. 15 and there was another light frost Tuesday morning, Oct. 17. This year's frost came one day earlier than last year when it visited the section Oct. 16. Both frosts were light and did little damage.

PLAYER OF WEEK

Marlin Dyess was selected "player of the week" by Jack Doane in his "Prep Parade" in the Montgomery Enterprise. He said:

"Many lads did an excellent job last week and the decision was a tough one, but Marlin Dyess of Elba gets the nod as 'player of the week' for his performance against the powerful Enterprise Wildcats. Dyess scored two touchdowns and scored two extra points as his defeated team nipped Enterprise, 21-12. The standout halfback, who forms a fearsome team with halfback Mack Wile, has been brilliant all season, as he was last year. Mainly on the running of Dyess and Wile, the touchdowns twice the 'Tigers of Elba' have now rolled to 17 consecutive victories."

COMPARISON SCORES

One of the football way big, high school football is so popular in this section that the result of most games are unpredictable and comparative scores do not mean a great deal.

For instance, Elba trounced Lufkin, 47-0. Then Lufkin beat supposedly powerful Andalusia, 19-14. Enterprise walloped Geneva, 38-0 after going down before Elba, 21-12. According to comparative scores, Elba should have won Geneva under 47-0 when the two teams met for homecoming night here two weeks from Friday.

Most fans who have seen Geneva say they think Elba will have a much tougher proposition on their hands that comparative scores indicate.

Friday night scores of teams yet on the Tiger schedule were: Hartford 19, Abbeville 7; Enterprise 38, Geneva 0; Ozark 26, Troy 6; Headland 14, Samson 13; Lufkin 40, Highland Home 4; Ashford 33, Cottonwood 14; Andalusia, no contest.

Mrs. FANNIE C. PRICE, 58, of Zion Chapel community, died in a Troy hospital Monday after a long illness.

Mrs. Price was formerly a resident of Elba. She was a member of the Congregational church.

Survivors are the husband, Frank Price; two sisters, Mrs. Carolyn Hall, Grafton, W. Va.; Miss Evelyn Ellison, Zion Chapel. Funeral services were held at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning from Zion Chapel Church with Rev. H. B. Beasley, Q. P. Jones and Russ Fuller officiating. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Storm Wrecks Houses Around Damascus

A heavy hail storm struck Elba and surrounding territory Sunday evening, accompanied by a torrential rain, the precipitation totaling about an inch and a half. It was the first rainfall to visit this section for about a month and was greatly needed.

The hailstones were as large as good-sized marbles. No serious damage has been reported in this immediate vicinity but at New Brockton considerable damage was reported.

Glen Vaughan was in New Brockton during the storm and said the hailstones were as big around as the small end of a soft drink bottle.

Dud English, also in New Brockton at the time, said it was the heaviest hail he ever saw.

The stones punctured roofs and caused numerous leaks. Considerable damage was done by that source. It was reported from Ozark that hail as large as golf balls fell there.

RFD Carriers Jesse Blocker and S. S. Edmundson report that tornado winds struck in several communities about 6 o'clock Sunday evening, destroying two houses and damaging several others in widely scattered sections. Severe damage was done to other property but no loss of life or serious personal injuries were reported.

Houses struck by the storm were: the home of Kelly Johnson, house unroofed; John Preston's house completely destroyed.

Elba Getting Stranglehold on Football Crown

After playing four straight conference games and winning them all, Elba gives the conference a chance to make up a little lost ground this week by taking on a non-conference team in Hartford. However, Elba has just taken a strange hold on the championship cup in this first gridiron campaign of the season.

Elba has only two more conference tilts to play and it will take an upset in one or both of them to knock the Tigers out of the league title. The Greenville Tigers are also undefeated in two conference games but have only three more to play—less than Elba—and will have to win them all and give Elba drop one to wear the crown. Elba and Greenville do not meet until the final game of the season.

Lufkin, Andalusia and Enterprise have only one left to play and have an outside chance of getting into the final if Elba and Greenville should get knocked out of the league.

WINESOME TRIO WEARS WINNING FASHIONS

Welfare Department Seeking Temporary Homes for Children

"Won't you share your home temporarily with a child?" This question is being asked today by Coffee County Welfare Director Mrs. Grace M. Ebert, who states that there is need in Coffee County for additional private family homes for children at board for varying lengths of time.

"A boarding home is any family home which has been licensed to care for unrelated children," Mrs. Ebert explained. "The license does not cost anything. It just means that the people in the home love children and their home meets the standards set by the State Welfare Board."

The Coffee County Welfare Department has responsibility for neglected, delinquent, and dependent children. Mrs. Ebert said. For example, when a case of child neglect is reported to the agency, there should be a boarding home ready for that child. That is why, Mrs. Ebert explained, it is important that there be more boarding homes in the county.

Boarding home care is for the children whose home are temporarily broken, as a rule, Mrs. Ebert said. Sometimes the mother is ill and the father cannot look after the children and work. Sometimes a child is neglected or perhaps his home is broken by desertion or divorce. Whatever the reason, the Department cares for the child in a licensed boarding home until more permanent arrangements

Household Hints

By making your own shoulder pads, you can equate the heights of uneven shoulders.

Using hot water to defrost the home freezer may speed up the job, but it's bad for the box. Hot water causes pressure to build up in the evaporator and makes the compressor difficult to start.

Chopped white seal will never form on the liquid in opened jars of pickles and olives if a spoonful of olive oil is added when the jar is first opened.

An easy marshmallow "meringue" for a pie can be made by placing out marshmallows in a baked pie shell before pouring in the hot filling. The marshmallow will rise to the top.

Baked sweet potatoes can be peeled very easily if they have been wrapped in a towel for about 20 minutes after coming out of the oven. This kind of peeling leaves a glazed finished and saves the vitamins close to the skin.

Rice won't stick to the pan in which it is cooked if a tiny bit of lard or other fat has been added to the cooking water.

Federal law says that every piece of wool fabric must carry a label. This regulation applies to both wool garments and piece goods.

Mrs. Ebert stressed the fact that boarding homes for children are not a place for children and that the Department assumes responsibility for medical care. She requested that people in Coffee County who could do so to open their homes to these children.

More Than Good Administration Needed in Schools

Grants totaling $115,800 from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation to improve the administration of schools will be directed toward the improvement of the school system in the state. The grant to the Kellogg Foundation will be used in a continuing program to improve school administration and $21,200 will be used to develop a graduate program in school administration at APL.

Iruman Pierce, dean of APL's school of education, said: "The regional program provides an opportunity to improve the administration of schools. The grant to APL will serve to improve the training opportunities for school administrators in this part of the South."

We are glad to see such training for school administrators strengthened. It will probably help but somewhere along the line students who graduate from these courses are going to run into bitter disillusionment. They will go into various administrative positions in the school system and be called on to make a study on some problem, consolidation for example. After they submit their recommendation to a board of education, the disillusionment comes.

Consolidation is not popular with the community which will lose the school. Knowing the school administrator is right, the board usually rejects the consolidation.

Crackdown Coming on Improper Lights, Bad Mufflers

West Coffee County vehicle owners can expect a closer check on faulty mufflers and improper lights. Highway Patrolman J. C. Fordham announced this week, Act No. 273 passed in the recent session of the state legislature goes into detail on lighting requirements for trucks, cars and trailers.

The highway patrolman said he has given many warning tickets since he has been stationed here to drivers whose cars had improper tail lights or no tail lights at all. Besides this, an emphasis will now be placed on apprehending drivers whose cars have faulty mufflers, bad brakes and improper lights on the front or back.

In regard to night driving, Act No. 273 has certain new regulations regarding approaching another vehicle from the rear and meeting one coming in the opposite direction. When meeting an oncoming vehicle, lights have to be dimmed within 500 feet. Also, whenever the driver of a vehicle follows another vehicle within 200 feet to the rear, except when engaged in the act of overtaking and passing, the driver is required to dim his lights.

Patrolman Fordham has requested these new regulations be brought to the attention of car drivers in West Coffee County as they will be enforced.

When questioned as to whether or not West Coffee County had any more than its fair share of jack rabbit drivers, speeders and cowboys, the local patrolman said the number was about the same in proportion to population as in any other area he had served in. All in all it seems local drivers are no worse or no better than the average.

A talk with Patrolman Fordham convinced the writer that when the officer issues a ticket, the recipient will have deserved it. He said his idea on enforcement of traffic laws is to educate the drivers to do the right thing and get them to want to obey the laws because it is the safest thing for them to do. The highway patrolman believes this is much more effective than relying on catching law violators and giving them a ticket.

We are glad the local representative of the state highway patrol feels this way in regard to law enforcement. His presence here and the fact that people know he is here for their safety should go a long way toward making Coffee County roads as safe as possible for motor travel.

Opposition to Foreign Aid Building Up

Another voice was raised against foreign aid recently by the governor of Utah who announced he was not going to pay that proportion of his income tax which the government has been spending on the give-away program. He is putting this money in the bank and plans to take his case to court to test the constitutionality of federal taxes being spent on foreign aid.

The governor of Utah might wind up being a martyr to his cause but we heartily endorse his indignation at continuing foreign aid. Just like we approved of U. S. Representative George Andrews' fight against the give-away program, so we are glad another public official wants to see it end.

Countries on the receiving end of foreign aid are not all in favor of it, either. To show how sentiment goes in England, we are reprinting below a recent editorial from the London Daily Mail. It reads:

"Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, borrowing a phrase from America, talks about the possibility of an agonising reappraisal of our trading policies."

"Mr. Butler was not speaking in anger, but he was certainly speaking in sorrow—sorrow over America's 'back-peddaling' in her trade relations with us."

"British industry has often been criticized as being too slow to take full advantage of American markets. Now here is the other side of the picture. The latest and most disturbing example of back-peddaling was the rejection of the English Electric Company's tender for equipment at the Chief Joseph Dam."

"Their tender (bid) had been turned down before, on the score that the company had never tackled such a big project and could not provide adequate service. Now, says American officialdom, it has been refused again to alleviate unemployment in the U. S."

"Is this sufficient reason for hampering our dollar trade? More people than ever before are at work in the U. S. The danger is that this official excuse may be adopted more widely as a pious slogan to keep British firms out of Washington has denied

Foster Homes for Children Sought by Welfare Department

A child makes a house a home. And there are children in Coffee County who need temporary homes and parents, according to Mrs. Grace M. Ebert, Director of Coffee County Public Welfare. You have probably heard and thought about the fact many times, the director declared yesterday, but do you have a youngster in your home? Perhaps your own sons or daughters are grown or away at school. Maybe you have one or two children, but wouldn't you be willing to share their homes with someone else's child?

"We don't mean people who will adopt children," she explained. "We mean warm-hearted adults who will love and understand a dependent, neglected, delinquent child who needs a home temporarily."

Further explaining the boarding foster home program of the Department of Public Welfare, Mrs. Ebert said the agency pays a monthly amount for board and clothing for the children, and takes care of the necessary medical bills.

"The State Welfare Board has set standards which must be followed by anyone caring for an unrelated child at home," Mrs. Ebert said. She added that the standards are not difficult to meet—that they refer to the physical condition of the home, the character of the children, the stability of the family economically and as a family unit, and the interest of the couple in children.

"People who are warm-hearted and love and understand children can usually meet the standards," she added. The Department issues a license to the adoptive parents, and without charge and works closely with them in helping the foster parent to care for the child.

Asked what types of children come to the attention of the Department for placement in boarding, the director said the children range in age from infants to teenagers. There may be a decision made regarding adoption, placement and commitment to the State Department, up to boys and girls in their early teens. There may be family groups in which the home is temporarily disrupted; there may be a child who has been abandoned; there may be older children who have shown delinquent tendencies and need to be away from their usual environment for a period of observation and careful supervision."

Chairman Brunson's remarks were made in connection with an announcement that the local chapter will participate in a traditional Christmas program—a high seas program again this year. This project, while sponsored by the Red Cross, is made possible by other organized persons over the nation, which contribute gifts for distribution to troops and ships' complements at sea on Christmas.

At the same time, he called on all civic, religious and social groups in the community to plan now to participate in the program.

"This traditional Red Cross service offers an excellent opportunity for these organizations to undertake a worthwhile project," Mr. Brunson said. "Participation not only assures us of some lonely serviceman's gratitude, but also affords us the satisfaction of knowing we've helped others at this happy season."

Any local organization wishing to participate in the Christmas-on-the-high-seas project should contact the West Coffee County Red Cross Chapter at the court house.

"Want you share your home temporarily with a child?" This question is being asked today by Coffee County Welfare Director Mrs. Grace M. Ebert, who states that there is need in Coffee County for additional private family homes to keep children at home for varying lengths of time.

Mrs. Ebert stressed the fact that board is paid for each child and that the Department assumes responsibility for medical care. She appealed to all people in Coffee County who could add to the open their homes to these children.

More Than Good Administration Needed in Schools

Grants totaling $115,600 from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation to improve the administration of schools will be directed toward API during the next four years. Of that $115,600 will be used in a statewide program to improve school administration and $21,200 will be used to develop the graduate program in school administration at API.

Mr. Truman Pierce, dean of API's school of education, said: "The regional program provides an opportunity to improve curriculum, the graduate training of school administrators and the administrative services of state departments of education in the southern region. The grant to API will serve to improve the training opportunities for school administrators in this part of the South."

We are glad to see such training for school administrators strengthened. It will probably help but somewhere along the line students who graduate from these courses are going to run into bitter disillusionment. They will go into various administrative positions in the school system and be called on to make a study on some problem, consolidation for example. After they submit their recommendation to a board of education, the disillusionment comes.

To consolidate is not popular with the community which will lose the school. Knowing the school administrator is right, the board usually rejects the consolidation idea or tables it with the hope that no one will bring up such an unpleasant subject again.

It takes a good deal of moral courage for a school board to make a decision which is right, but at the same time unpopular. They know from sad experience that 30 or 40 families in a community will come storming into their meeting to demand that their school be left open. The thousands of taxpayers whose money the board is saving, don't raise a single voice in the board's defense.

Technique and knowledge of school administrators can be improved through such grants as made to API by the W. K. Kellogg Foundation. But that won't help the schools until the people are made to realize that a trained educator can run a better school system than they can. The little red school house has no place in the atomic age. When parents acknowledge the fact that a school administrator knows more about educating their child than they do, the children will start to get better training. Just like parrot, filled, so should they listen to the recommendations of professional educators as to schooling for their child. The same person who wouldn't think of telling a dentist what technique to use in filling a cavity in a child's mouth has no compunction in telling a principal how to run his school.

"British industry has often been criticised as being too slow to take full advantage of American markets. Now here is the other side of the picture. The latest and most disturbing example of back-peddaling was the rejection of the English Electric Company's tender for equipment at the Chief Joseph Dam."

"Their tender (bid) had been turned down before, on the score that the company had never tackled such a big project and could not provide adequate service. Now, says American officialdom, it has been refused again to alleviate unemployment in the U. S."

"Is this sufficient reason for hampering our dollar trade? More people than ever before are at work in the U. S. The danger is that this official excuse may be adopted more widely as a popular slogan to keep British firms out. Washington has denied that British contracts for big American goods are being lost to the U. S. But there are distressing signs that small sectional interests are wielding powers of persuasion quite out of proportion to their importance."

"The American bicycle industry is not a major industry. Yet President Eisenhower, a staunch advocate of a liberal trade policy, recently increased the import duty on British bicycles. Swiss watches were treated in a similar way, so that Switzerland lost heavily in her most vital market and America lost a great deal of good will. How far is this unfortunate trend going to be allowed to spread?"

"We need dollars urgently. Quite obviously we cannot hope to secure an over-all aim of which Mr. Butler spoke—to widen trade and to see free payments—if America's instinct for protectionism is allowed to get out of hand. Only a year ago President Eisenhower declared his intention to move towards a gradual tariff reduction of 15 per cent. Since then America has been leaning in quite the opposite direction. She may not consider her tariffs abnormally high, and indeed other countries impose heavier duties. But America, as the wealthiest and most powerful country in the world, has a special responsibility to the other nations limping along behind her."

"She can afford to be more liberal than others—and that is not a plea for charity but for common sense. She, alone among the nations, has sufficient influence to keep Western trade flowing freely and Western economies stable."

"Was their, perhaps, some hope abroad that Britain would be forced to devalue her pound again? If so, that hope has been kindled by Mr. Butler. We are glad that the Chancellor has scotched the rumours about devaluation. We said recently that they were a bad omen. If U. S. The encouragement of healthy speculation in sterling. Now that should cease."

"The pound will be stronger as a result of Mr. Butler's speech. But we still need those dollars. What has happened to that rousing old slogan, Trade, not Aid?"

Foster Homes for Children Sought by Welfare Department

A child makes a house a home. And there are children in Coffee County who need temporary homes and parents, according to Mrs. Grace M. Ebert, Director of Coffee County Public Welfare. You have probably heard and thought about the fact many times, the director declared yesterday, but do you have a youngster in your home? Perhaps your own sons or daughters are grown or away at school. Maybe you have one or two children, but wouldn't mind having one or two more.

If yours is the home without enough or any children, perhaps you are just the couple to be needed. We don't mean people who will adopt children, she explained. We mean warm-hearted adults who will love and understand a dependent, neglected or delinquent child who needs a home temporarily.

Further explaining the boarding foster home program of the Department of Public Welfare, Mrs. Ebert said the agency pays a monthly amount for board and clothing for the children. Mrs. Ebert appealed to the citizens of Coffee County to become foster parents. "You will be performing a real service for the community by helping a child when he most needs a home," she pointed out. "That is the duty of every citizen of this county. You can help a child when he most needs a home, no greater reward than water, and helping a disturbed, lost or unhappy child develop into a normal youngster."

In conclusion the director emphasized that this program is one of temporary care, that the child is not available for adoption. They merely need homes until their own are repaired or until permanent plans can be made," she explained.

Search me, O God, and know my heart; try me, and know my thoughts... (Psalm 139).

When we pray to God to search our hearts, we usually place ourselves in His hands, knowing and admitting our weakness, seeking His guidance and strength—seeking to know and obey His law and His will. It is only through our humility and prayer that God is ever present and willing, can enter our souls.

People who are warm-hearted and love and understand children can usually meet the standards, she added. The Department issues a license to those without charge and works closely with them in helping the foster children become adjusted to the new home.

Asked what types of children come to the attention of the Department for placement in boarding, the director said the children range in age from infants who must have care until a decision is made regarding adoption, placement and commitment to the State Department, up to boys and girls in their early teens. There may be family groups of children whose home is temporarily disrupted; there may be a child who has been abandoned; there may be older children who have shown delinquent tendencies and need to be away from their usual environment for a period of observation and careful supervision."

Red Cross Needs Xmas Gift Packages For Armed Forces

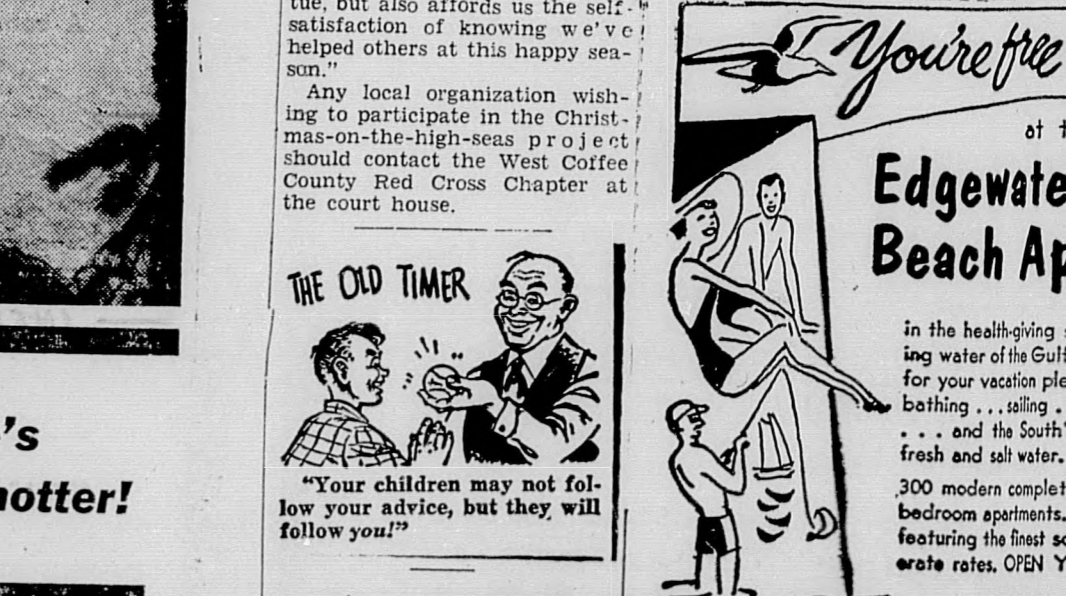

"At this time of year any talk of Christmas seems pretty far fetched," says Lister Brunson, chairman of the West Coffee County Red Cross Chapter. "And yet, planning is essential at this early date if we are to remember men and women in the nation's armed forces who find themselves aboard ship next December 25."

Chairman Brunson's remarks were made in connection with an announcement that the local chapter will participate in the traditional Christmas-sea-and-high seas program again this year. This project, while sponsored by the Red Cross, is made possible by other organized persons over the nation, which contribute gifts for distribution to troops and ships' complements.

At the same time, he called on all civic, religious and social groups in the community to plan now to participate in the program.

"This traditional Red Cross service offers an excellent opportunity for these organizations to take a worthwhile project," Mr. Brunson said. "Participation not only assures us of some lovely servicemen's gratitude, but also affords us the satisfaction of knowing we've helped others at this happy season."

Any local organization wishing to participate in the Christmas-on-the-high-seas project should contact the West Coffee County Red Cross Chapter at the court house.

Although the March freeze badly damaged PEACHES in most of the state, Mobile and Baldwin counties have a fair crop.

Early stages of harvest are in progress in these counties. Soil moisture continues to be all right for safe storage.

GRAIN SORGHUM harvest was slower during the week with showers hindering operations. Most of this crop is ready for harvest at this time.

SOYBEAN harvest continues in Baldwin and Mobile counties with some hindrance from rain.

Very little HAYMAKING activity was reported during the week. Most farmers have an ample supply for the coming winter months.

PEANUT digging is about 90 percent completed in the southeastern counties, but threshing has been slow due to a shortage of moisture but since showers relieved this shortage to some extent this activity is gaining momentum.

The seeding of SMALL GRAIN and winter COVER CROPS has been slow due to a shortage of moisture but since showers relieved this shortage to some extent this activity is gaining momentum.

temperatures following the showers gave relief from a continued period of hot, dry weather.

COTTON harvest was hindered during the last week by the showers. Harvest is about complete in the southern counties but peanut threshing is competing for labor and the final harvest of cotton will lag for this area. In the central counties fall seed already planted and in the northern counties about 60 percent of the harvest has been harvested. Good breaking yields and good quality have been reported for all sections of the state. Farmers are enjoying swapping cotton yarns at the gins.

Record Bale Per Acre Yield of Cotton Now In State Warehouses

A 1955 cotton crop of 975,000 bales is forecast for Alabama based on conditions as of Oct. 1. This is 247,000 or 24 percent over last year's crop and is indicated at 155,000 bales or almost 19 percent higher than it was on Sept. 1. Yield per acre for the state, indicated at 471 pounds, is 173 pounds above last year's yield and 185 pounds above the 10-year average.

Ideal weather, improved cropping methods and the best available land for cotton were among the factors contributing to the record-breaking yield for Alabama.

Picking and ginning made good progress during the month being indicated at about 64 percent complete for the state. This is considerably behind last year's yield when ginning was 81 percent complete by Oct. 1, but about the same as other past years. In the southern districts completeness of ginning ran from 82 to 90 percent, the central districts completed ginning ran from 82 to 90 percent, the central districts from 82 to 90 percent, the central districts from 82 to 90 percent.

Two wheat varieties lead in all areas of Alabama, according to the API Experiment Station's 1955 variety report. These two top performers are Anderson and Coker 47-27.

Brothers need at least a square foot of floor space per bird.

Farm machinery and implements should be stored in a shed or building away from livestock and chickens.

Pipe used for irrigation ought to be protected from the weather.

The seeding of SMALL GRAIN and winter COVER CROPS has been slow due to a shortage of moisture but since showers relieved this shortage to some extent this activity is gaining momentum.
